

A close-up portrait of Bryan Lentz, a man with dark hair and a serious expression, looking slightly to the left. He is wearing a dark suit jacket over a blue collared shirt.

Some politicians try to keep their promises.

Not Bryan Lentz.

Running for State Representative in 2006
Lentz promised to change Harrisburg...

...instead he gave us higher taxes & spending,
flip flops and ethical lapses.

Paid for by:
Pennsylvania Business Council
116 Pine Street
Harrisburg, PA 17101

FAILED

And now Lentz wants to be our Congressman.

- Lentz promised to change the way Harrisburg worked but then voted for $2 billion in higher taxes and more spending. (www.house.state.pa.us)
- Lentz promised not to take the $163 per-diems legislators receive just for showing up in Harrisburg — in addition to their regular salary. But then Lentz flip-flopped and took the per-diem reimbursement, lining his pockets with an extra $26,000. (Main Line Times - 10/3/2010)
- Lentz promised not to take a free taxpayer-paid car, but then he did, pocketing thousands more. (Main Line Times - 10/3/2010)

Bryan Lentz: He can't change Washington when he's part of the problem in Harrisburg.